What we are doing and why

As part of the TTC's Easier Access program, which systematically provides enhanced barrier-free accessibility for transit riders and pedestrians at subway stations across the city, Islington Station is slated to be modernized. This will include an entirely new bus terminal and station entrance, featuring plenty of natural light and a more accessible subway station platform.

Station modernization, upgrades and improvements will include:

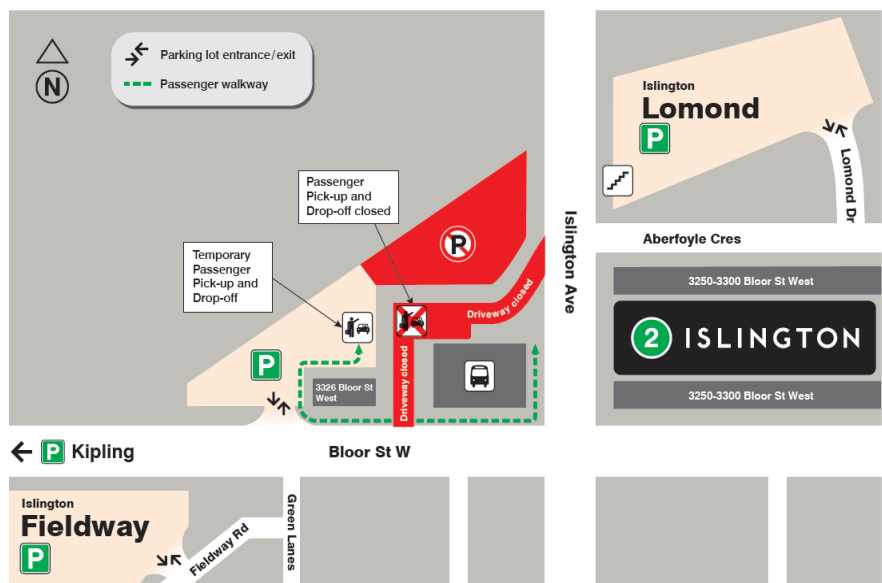

- New Bus Terminal with five bus bays. One bus bay to be designated as a Wheel-Trans stop.
- New Station entrance on the northwest side of Islington Avenue and Aberfoyle Crescent, with ramps for barrier-free accessibility to the concourse level.
- New Underground Bus Terminal Tunnel with retail spaces, connecting the new Bus Terminal to the existing station concourse via one elevator and a set of escalators and staircases.
- One elevator to provide barrier-free accessibility between the existing subway concourse level and platform level of the Station.
- Improved signage and new public art within the Station.

Traffic and pedestrian impact

The TTC will relocate the existing Passenger Pick-Up Drop-Off (PPUDO) area to the Main Commuter Lot at Islington Station. In addition, parking within the Main Commuter Lot will be permanently reduced to begin construction of the new Bus Terminal.

Work hours

Work will take place Monday to Friday between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Some weekend and evening work may be required to maintain the schedule.

TTC service

Access to the existing bus terminal and subway platforms will be maintained throughout construction. Planned service disruptions will be communicated to residents in advance of work.
